FeniXX brings thousands of rediscovered French titles to Torrossa Digital Library

A new collaboration makes rare and out-of-print twentieth-century French books available to libraries and readers through Torrossa, with around 36,000 e-books already online and thousands more to follow.

Torrossa is pleased to announce its collaboration with FeniXX, whose ambitious digitisation programme is reviving French books that are no longer available in print. Around 36,000 FeniXX e-books are already available through the Torrossa Digital Library, with the collection expected to grow by approximately 10,000 titles each month towards a catalogue of some 90,000 works.

Since 2014, FeniXX has been digitising and distributing twentieth-century books under the aegis of the Ministry of Culture and in partnership with the CNL, SNE, Sofia, and the BnF. Its programme has returned more than 96,000 titles to circulation across almost 100 distinguished French publishing imprints, reflecting the breadth and diversity of twentieth-century publishing.

With some 30,000 titles designed for inclusive use, the FeniXX collection complements Torrossa's accessible platform and reading solutions, which help reduce barriers to consultation.

By bringing this extensive and distinctive collection to Torrossa, the collaboration gives libraries a new way to preserve access to France's publishing heritage while expanding the range of French-language material available for teaching, research and discovery.
